Description
What ever process is used to build the development versions of Dolphin is setting the permissions incorrectly such that dolphin will not run for any user other than the one who installed it. Comparing the permissions with the stable 4.0 release and modifying the dev version to match allows Dolphin to run for all users on Mac OS X. These files/directories need to be set to 755: Dolphin.app Dolphin.app/Contents Dolphin.app/Contents/MacOS Dolphin.app/Contents/MacOS/Dolphin Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources These files need to be set to 644: Dolphin.app/Contents/Info.plist Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources/Dolphin.icns

This is bizarre. For reference, the permissions are currently 700 and 600, meaning no one but the user who installs it can run the executable / play Dolphin. how sad!

Doesn't happen for me. Perhaps the buildbot is compiling with a weird umask.

This is still occurring in 5.0-rc34.

There are now additional files that need the permissions changed.

chmod 755:

Dolphin.app
Dolphin.app/Contents
Dolphin.app/Contents/Frameworks
Dolphin.app/Contents/MacOS
Dolphin.app/Contents/MacOS/Dolphin
Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources
Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources/*.lproj

chmod 644:

Dolphin.app/Contents/Info.plist
Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources/Dolphin.icns

Curiously some files have the correct permissions. The "dolphin-emu.mo" files in all the Dolphin.app/Contents/Resources/*.lproj directories already have permissions of 644. The same goes for "libusb-1.0.0.dylib" in Dolphin.app/Contents/MacOS and Dolphin.app/Contents/Frameworks.

Is this still an issue?

#7 - 10/04/2016 04:19 AM - sam

No longer an issue in 5.0
